1. Executive summary

In 2014, Rural Electrification Corporation Limited (RECL) supported the International Crops Research Institute for the Semi-Arid Tropics (ICRISAT) in harnessing the potential of rainfed areas in four villages each in Anantapur (Kondampalli, Gonipeta, Settipalli and Cherlopalli) in Andhra Pradesh state and Wanaparthy (Rajapet, Kadukuntla, Peddagudem and Mentapally) in Telangana state and to also serve as scalable sites of learning. The first phase continued till 2017, and the project was revived in 2020 to continue pending research and development works. In spite of the challenges posed by the COVID-19 pandemic, the planned interventions were implemented following safety guidelines.

At the Anantapur site in Andhra Pradesh, 578 demonstrations were conducted on the application of micro and secondary nutrients, for which farmers were provided Sulfur (S), Boron (B) and Zinc (Zn) fertilizers. Demonstrations were also conducted on improved varieties of groundnut (ICGV 91114, K6, ICGV 350) and pigeonpea (ICPL 85063, ICPL 8863) by providing seeds from ICRISAT. A total of 141 demonstrations were conducted using groundnut and 100 with pigeonpea. To get women more involved in activities and promote household nutrition, nutri-gardens were promoted with 284 women farmers who were provided vegetable seeds, a small sprayer for pesticides, neem oil and 10 kg of vermicompost. Twenty-seven farmers were supported in strengthening livestock-related activities through fodder promotion.

Similarly, at the Wanaparthy site in Telangana, 427 demonstrations were conducted on the application of micro and secondary nutrients, for which farmers were provided with S, B and Zn fertilizers. Demonstrations were conducted on improved varieties of groundnut (ICGV 91114, K6) and pigeonpea/red gram (ICPL 85063, ICPH 2740) by providing them seeds from ICRISAT. A total of 80 demonstrations were conducted with groundnut and 75 with pigeonpea. To promote household nutrition, nutri-gardens were promoted through 365 women farmers who were provided with vegetable seeds, a small sprayer for pesticides and macro and micronutrient fertilizers. Farmers in Wanaparthy were also supported in growing fruit trees. A total of 6,973 fruit saplings (mango, guava, acid lime, curry leaf) were distributed to 602 families.

In order to disseminate project information to the stakeholders, an article on 'Harvesting rains to grow fruit, vegetables and improved crops at watershed learning sites in India' that can be accessed at <https://www.icrisat.org/harvesting-rains-to-grow-fruit-vegetables-and-improved-crops-at-watershed-learning-sites-in-india> was published in ICRISAT's Happenings newsletter (7 Aug 2020).

2. Background

Rainfed agriculture in the semi-arid tropics in general, and Andhra Pradesh and Telangana states specifically, is characterised by high risks from drought, degraded natural resources and low system productivity leading to poverty and food insecurity. Under its corporate social responsibility, RECL supported ICRISAT in developing scalable sites of learning to improve livelihoods and build resilience through integrated watershed management in Anantapur district of Andhra Pradesh and Wanaparthy (erstwhile Mahabubnagar) district of Telangana.

The RECL-ICRISAT watershed project implemented in Anantapur covers four villages, ie, Kondampalli, Gonipeta, Settipalli and Cherlopalli (in Penukonda mandal) with a population of 8,700 and covering 6,810 ha, including 3,150 ha under cultivation by 1,480 households. The important crops cultivated are groundnut, maize, paddy, finger millet and sunflower.

In Wanaparthy district, the project was implemented in four villages, ie, Rajapeta, Kadukuntla, Peddagudem and Mentapally with a population of 11,726 and covering 5,400 ha, including 3,970 ha under cultivation by 2,285 households. The main crops grown are paddy, pigeonpea, and groundnut.

We adopted a holistic approach in the watersheds that encompassed the following:

- To establish a site of learning of community watershed management approach
- In-situ, ex-situ rainwater conservation
- Soil health mapping and need-based management
- Crops and cropping systems management
- On-farm mechanisation and infrastructure development
- System context development, and diversifying and strengthening livelihoods
- Mainstreaming of women farmers through select interventions
- Demonstrating improved management for enhancing productivity
- Strengthening community-based organisations
- Capacity building and training lead farmers to serve as leaders in the watershed
- Strategic data collection and synthesis for informed decision making
- Partnerships with key stakeholders.

A multi-disciplinary team of scientists/managers is implementing the project with a field-based Scientific Officer (MTech/MSc) at each site. For effectively reaching out to the community, ICRISAT partnered with local NGO SAMATHA Society for Rural Education and Development in the Anantapur site and BAIF Institute for Sustainable Livelihoods and Development (BISLD) in the Wanaparthy site. Each NGO partner is supported by five staff at each site.

3. Progress in Anantapur watershed

Soil test-based fertilizer management demonstrations

Based on soil analysis in the villages, deficient micro and secondary nutrients were promoted. Each farmer was provided with zinc sulphate, gypsum and agribor (@ 10 kg, 50 kg, 1 kg, respectively) and 578 demonstrations were conducted with major crops like groundnut, pigeonpea, paddy and others (Table 1 and Figure 1).

See Annexure 1.1 for farmer-wise details.

Improved crop varieties, Integrated Pest Management (IPM) and other demonstrations

The introduction of improved crop varieties provides great scope to improve productivity. So, demonstrations on improved varieties of groundnut (ICGV 91114, K6, ICGV 350) and pigeonpea (ICPL 85063, ICPL 8863) were conducted. Each farmer was provided 10 kg of groundnut seed and 1 kg of pigeonpea seed. A total of 141 demonstrations were conducted with groundnut and 100 with pigeonpea (Table 2 and Figure 2).

See Annexures 1.2 a & b for farmer-wise details.

Mainstreaming women: Nutri-gardens & livestock activities

To ensure the involvement of women as well as household nutrition, nutri-gardens were promoted. A total of 284 women were supported in setting up nutri-gardens (Table 3 and Figures 3 and 4). Each one was provided with around 100 g of vegetable seeds, a small sprayer for pesticides, ½ litre of neem oil, 250 g of micronutrient mixture (boron, zinc, iron, copper, manganese, molybdenum, i.e. EverGreen MAX) and 10 kg of vermicompost.

See Annexure 1.3 for farmer-wise details.

Livestock related activities are also in general in domain of women and any improved in productivity leads to better household nutrition and incomes for women. A multicut variety of fodder sorghum (COFS 29) was promoted among 27 farmers (Table 4 and Figure 5). Each farmer was provided with 1 kg seed and a 50 kg bag of fertilizer mix.

4. Progress in Wanaparthy watershed

Soil test-based fertilizer management demonstrations

Based on soil analysis, deficient micro and secondary nutrients were promoted among 427 farmers to establish demonstrations. Each farmer was provided with micro and secondary nutrients like zinc, sulphur and boron (Table 5 and Figures 6 and7).

See Annexure 2.1 for farmer wise details.

Promoting horticulture

To enhance system productivity, fruit plantations were promoted on marginal lands. During the rainy season, mango, guava, acid lime and curry leaf saplings were distributed to interested farmers across four villages. A total of 6,973 saplings were distributed to 602 households (Table 7 and Figure 9).

See Annexure 2.3 for farmer-wise details.

Mainstreaming women: Nutri-gardens & livestock activities

Nutri-gardens were promoted among women farmers to get them more involved. A total of 365 women were supported in setting up nutri-gardens (Table 8 and Figure 10). They were each given around 150-400 g of vegetable seeds, a small sprayer for pesticides, 2 kg of NPK fertilizer and 100 g of micro/secondary nutrient (Zn, B, S) mixture.

See Annexure 2.4 for farmer-wise details.

Capacity building

A field-based ICRISAT Scientific Officer, four field staff and a coordinator supported by the NGO partner have been regularly visiting the farmers to build their skills in the interventions.

5. Communication & dissemination

For wider dissemination of project achievements to stakeholders, an article on 'Harvesting rains to grow fruit, vegetables and improved crops at watershed learning sites in India' (Figure 11) that can be accessed at <https://www.icrisat.org/harvesting-rains-to-grow-fruit->

vegetables-and-improved-crops-at-watershed-learning-sites-in-india/ was published in ICRISAT's Happenings newsletter (07 Aug 2020). Apart from highlighting the achievements during the ongoing rainy season 2020, it also included those achieved in the first phase.

Impact story
Harvesting rains to grow fruit, vegetables and improved crops at watershed learning sites in India

[1] Groundnut demonstration plot interspersed with guava trees in Anantapur. [2] Pigeonpea demonstration plot in Wanaparthy.

This cropping season, observing all safety measures amidst the COVID pandemic (see box), more than a 1,000 farmers will be participating in demonstrations on growing improved groundnut, pigeonpea and vegetables with balanced application of fertilizers and planting orchards at two learning sites of a successful watershed initiative in southern India. Simultaneously, more than 300 farmers will be participating in constructing new farm ponds. Increased water availability due to watershed interventions has enabled farmers in two states to grow new and better crops and increase production on drought-stricken lands that barely supported subsistence.

Entering into Phase II this year, this Corporate Social Responsibility project of the Rural Electrification Corporation Limited (RECL), India, seeks to build on work that began in 2014 in Wanaparthy district in Telangana state and Anantapur district in Andhra Pradesh state.

The watersheds are now developing into exemplar sites to provide a proof of concept of scaling out key on-farm solutions for climate-resilience and strengthening of livelihoods and mainstreaming of women farmers. These projects will show the way forward not only for spilling drylands but also for leveraging social responsibility in uplifting the underprivileged, while contributing to food security and ecosystem services.

During Phase II, the initiative will focus on the following:

- Intensify on-farm water solutions for drought-proofing
- Extensive on-farm mechanization
- Infrastructure for improving operational & economic efficiency
- Mainstreaming of women farmers through select activities
- Building on rejuvenated soil and water resources for on-farm intensification and diversification

Impact of Phase I of the watershed projects

- Harvesting rainwater:
 - Net water storage capacity of more than 50000 m³ created at each site.

Major water conservation measures implemented at Anantapur site includes 58 farm ponds, 15 check dams, 256 rock-filled-dams/hoop-boulder-structures, 43

Check dam at Anantapur.

We believe all people have a right to nutritious food and a better livelihood.

ICRISAT works in agricultural research for development across the drylands of Africa and Asia, making farming profitable for smallholder farmers while reducing malnutrition and environmental degradation.

We work across the entire value chain from developing new varieties to agri-business and linking farmers to markets.
