1. Executive summary

In 2014, Rural Electrification Corporation Limited (RECL) supported the International Crops Research Institute for the Semi-Arid Tropics (ICRISAT) in harnessing the potential of rainfed areas in four villages each in Anantapur (Kondampalli, Gonipeta, Settipalli and Cherlopalli) in Andhra Pradesh state and Wanaparthy (Rajapet, Kadukuntla, Peddagudem and Mentapally) in Telangana state and to make them scalable sites of learning. The first phase continued till 2017, and the project was revived in 2020 to continue pending research and development works.

During the period Jan 2020 to March 2021, the focus has been on rainwater conservation as drought-proofing strategy, productivity enhancement, strengthening income-generating activities along with mainstreaming women in such activities, developing mechanization and infrastructure, capacity-building and communication.

With a view to provide smallholders farmers quick access to water as a drought-proofing strategy and to support intensification/diversification at the Anantapur site in Andhra Pradesh, 142 new farm-ponds were dug till March 2021. The work for three check dams in Kondampalli, Settipalli and Cherlopalli villages is in progress. For productivity enhancement, demonstrations of application of deficient micro/secondary nutrients were done. The data collected in 586 demonstrations showed yield benefit of 23% in paddy, 24% in groundnut, 14% in pigeonpea. Harvest data from 156 improved groundnut variety demonstrations and 111 pigeonpea demonstrations showed significant yield benefit with groundnut varieties - 21% with K-6, 23% with ICGV-91114, 44% with ICGV-350. In case of pigeonpea varieties, the yield benefit was around 22% with ICPL 85063 variety and around 18% with ICPL 8863 variety. During the post-rainy 2020-21 season, soil test-based micro/secondary nutrient application demonstrations were conducted with 329 farmers in crops like paddy and groundnut. Improved chickpea variety demonstrations were conducted with 14 farmers and 99 demonstrations were conducted on Integrated Pest Management (IPM). For mainstreaming of women farmers, a total of 284 women were supported in setting up nutri-gardens; data recorded showed average vegetable yield of 26 kg from each nutri-garden, and vegetables produced were used for household consumption. Three animal health camps were conducted in collaboration with line-department experts in Anantapur site where around 1,400 cattle and nearly 3,600 sheep/goat belonging to 330 households were treated. To address fodder scarcity, a multicut variety of fodder sorghum (COFS 29) was promoted among 27 farmers during rainy 2020 season, and during the postrainy 2020-21 season, sorghum (CSH 24 MF) fodder demonstrations were promoted with 60 farmers. Livestock activity is in the domain of women and any gain out of this activity in general leads to their incomes. Therefore, interested women (75 under 5 SHGs across four villages) were identified to support starting of livestock-based (ram-lamb, poultry) activities. During 2020-21, mango and guava saplings were distributed to interested farmers across four villages and a total of 6,165 saplings were distributed to 621 households. One Custom Hiring Center (CHC) is being established in Kondampalli village to be managed by Gram Panchayat (GP) with support of an NGO, watershed committee (WC) and farmers. The process of procurement of machineries is on and is expected to make CHC in Kondampalli village operational soon. To build capacity of farmers, formal and informal orientation/trainings were done. Around 18 formal trainings programs were organized to create awareness and build their skills to adopt technologies, and nine field-days were conducted to show the technologies that can be adopted in Anantapur watershed.

Similarly, to improve the resilience and system productivity at the Wanaparthy site, 148 new farm-ponds were dug till March 2021. Construction of three check dams is going on in Rajapeta, Peddagudem and Kadukuntla villages. The yield data from productivity enhancement demonstrations during rainy 2020 season showed around 10% increase with the application of deficient micro/secondary nutrients in paddy and groundnut crops. In case of demonstrations of improved varieties of groundnut (ICGV 91114, K6) and pigeonpea (ICPL 85063, ICPH 2740), data recording showed a yield benefit of 21% with K-6 and 22% with ICGV-91114. In the case of pigeonpea, improved varieties the improvement was around 19% with ICPL 85063 and around 13% with ICPH 2740 over local varieties. During post-rainy 2020-21 season, 286 soil test-based nutrient management demonstrations, 12 demonstrations with improved chickpea varieties, i.e., JG-14 and JAKI 9218, and 158 demonstrations on IPM were conducted. Two hundred and eighty nutri-gardens were established by women during rainy 2020 season, with each household producing 13 kg vegetables on average for household consumption. Similarly, during post-rainy 2020-21 season, 384 women were supported in establishing nutri-gardens. One animal health camp was conducted in Rajapeta village of Wanaparthy site on 12 Nov 2020 where around 700 livestock from 61 household were treated and provided with supplements. To address fodder scarcity, sorghum (CSH 24 MF) fodder demonstrations were promoted with 60 farmers during the post-rainy 2020-21 season. For promoting livestock-based activities by women, 50 interested women across four villages are identified to be supported in starting livestock-based (ram-lamb, poultry) activities. Another 20-25 interested women, who will be supported monetarily through the project, are being identified. The women will be guided to successfully start livestock-based livelihood. To enhance system productivity, a total of 6,973 fruit saplings were planted by 602 households. One Custom Hiring Center (CHC) is being established in Rajapeta village to be managed by Gram Panchayat (GP) with support of an NGO, watershed committee (WC) and farmers. The process of procurement of machineries is going on. For building capacity of farmers, around 36 formal trainings and programs were organized to create awareness and to build skills in adopting the technologies. Nine field-days were conducted to demonstrate adoptable technologies in the watershed

The project learnings and impacts were published in ICRISAT's Newsletter, Happenings, on 07 Aug 2020, 05 March 2021, 05 March 2021, and 19 March 2021. RECL-ICRIAT watershed story also appeared in CGIAR Research Program on Water, Land and Ecosystems on 17 March 2021. Project activities are widely covered by local newspapers as well.

2. Background

As a socially responsible corporation, RECL supported ICRISAT in developing scalable sites of learning to improve livelihoods and build resilience through integrated watershed management in Anantapur district of Andhra Pradesh and Wanaparthy (erstwhile Mahabubnagar) district of Telangana (Figure 1).

The RECL-ICRISAT watershed project implemented in Anantapur covers four villages, i.e., Kondampalli, Gonipeta, Settipalli and Cherlopalli (in Penukonda mandal) with a population of 8,700 over 6,810 ha, including 3,150 ha cultivated by 1,480 households. The important crops cultivated in the villages are groundnut, maize, paddy, finger millet and sunflower.

In Wanaparthy district, the project was implemented in four villages, i.e., Rajapeta, Kadukuntla, Peddagudem and Mentapally with a population of 11,726 in 5,400 ha, including 3,970 ha cultivated by 2,285 households. The main crops grown are paddy, pigeonpea and groundnut.

A multidisciplinary team of scientists/managers is implementing the project with a field-based Scientific Officer (MTech/MSc) at each site. For effective outreach to the community, ICRISAT partnered with a local NGO, SAMATHA Society for Rural Education and Development, in the Anantapur site and with BAIF Institute for Sustainable Livelihoods and Development (BISLD) in the Wanaparthy site.

3. Progress in Anantapur watershed

3.1. Rainwater conservation

Farm-ponds

Water scarcity in Andhra Pradesh, and in drylands as such, risks dryland agriculture. Huge variations in rainfall and its distribution leading to frequent droughts affects agricultural prospects, which is expected to further deteriorate due to climate change. Finding ways to increase water availability and quick access to water by smallholders is an important step in supporting dryland agriculture. Construction of low cost, small farm ponds has proved to be a promising option for rainwater storage. It irrigation available when critically needed and is a drought-proofing strategy that helps plug yield losses of 30-60% besides giving farmers enough security to take risks in diversifying to high value agriculture. (<http://dx.doi.org/10.1079/9781786394514.0197>, <https://www.tandfonline.com/doi/abs/10.1080/03650340.2018.1560426?journalCode=gags20>).

Having seen the benefits through construction of 58 farm-ponds during 2014-2017 during the earlier phase of the project in Anantapur, more farmers are volunteering to construct ponds in their farms. Subsequently, 142 new farm-ponds have been dug across four villages in Anantapur watershed (Figure 2) until March 2021. All the farm-ponds are being cement-lined and fenced with a barbed wire for safety.

Please see Annexure 6.1 for farmer-wise details w.r.t. farm-ponds.

Check dams

Three sites for construction, one each in Kondampalli, Settipalli and Cherlopalli villages, have been identified and finalized in consultations with WC and farmers. The work will be completed by April 21.

3.2. Productivity enhancement demonstrations

3.2.1. Rainy 2020 season demonstrations

Soil test-based fertilizer management demonstrations

Based on soil analysis in the villages, micro and secondary nutrients that the soils were deficient in were promoted. Farmers were provided with zinc sulphate, gypsum and agribor (@ 10 kg, 40 kg, 1 kg per acre, respectively) and 586 demonstrations were conducted with major crops like groundnut, paddy, pigeonpea and other crops. Grain yield data recorded at harvest showed yield benefits of 23% in paddy, 24% in groundnut and 14% in pigeonpea (Figure 3, 4).

Please see Annexure 6.2 for farmer-wise micro/secondary nutrient demonstrations and yield data details.

Improved crop varieties demonstrations

Improved crop varieties help improve productivity. Therefore, demonstrations of improved varieties of groundnut (ICGV 91114, K6 and ICGV 350) and pigeonpea (ICPL 85063 and ICPL 8863) were conducted. Each farmer was provided 10 kg groundnut seed and 1 kg pigeonpea seed. A total of 156 demonstrations were conducted with groundnut and 111 with pigeonpea. Data at harvest showed significant yield benefit with groundnut varieties- 21% with K-6, 23% with ICGV-91114 and 44% with ICGV-350 (Figure 5, 7). In case of pigeonpea varieties, the yield benefit was around 22% with ICPL 85063 and around 18% with ICPL 8863 variety (Figure 6, 7).

Please see Annexure 6.3a for farmer-wise groundnut varieties demonstrations and yield data details. For farmer-wise pigeonpea varieties demonstrations and yield data details see Annexure 6.3b.

3.2.2. Post-rainy 2020-21 season demonstrations

Soil test-based fertilizer management demonstrations

In line with rainy 2020 demonstrations, soil test-based demonstrations in crops like paddy and groundnut (Figure 8) were also conducted with 329 farmers. Data will be collected for improved vs farmers practice for reporting in subsequent reports.

Improved crop varieties demonstrations

In line with rainy 2020 demonstrations, 14 demonstrations were conducted with improved chickpea varieties, i.e., JG-14 and JAKI 9218 (Figure 9). Data will be collected for improved vs farmers practice and reported in subsequent reports.

Integrated Pest Management (IPM) demonstrations

During post-rainy 2020-21 season, 99 demonstrations were conducted on IPM (Table 1; Figure 10). Protective sprays of neem oil were given. Data will be collected for improved vs farmers practice for reporting in subsequent reports.

Please see Annexure 6.4 for farmer-wise IPM demonstrations details during post-rainy 2020-21 season.

3.3. Income generating interventions & mainstreaming women farmers

Nutri-gardens by women farmers

To ensure involvement of women and to improve household nutrition, nutri-gardens were promoted. A total of 284 women were supported in setting up nutri-gardens. Each person was provided around 100-125 g of vegetable seeds (bitter gourd, snake gourd, ridge gourd, spinach and gongura) a small sprayer for pesticides, ½ liter of neem oil, 250 g of micronutrient mixture (boron, zinc, iron, copper, manganese, molybdenum, i.e., EverGreen MAX) and 10 kg of vermicompost (Figure 11). Data recorded showed average 26 kg vegetable yield from each nutri-garden. The vegetables grown were used for household consumption.

Please see Annexure 6.5 for women farmer-wise nutri-gardens and yield data details.

Animal health camps

Three animal health camps were conducted in collaboration with line-department experts in Anantapur site (Figure 12) in Settippalli village on 29 Sept 2020, Kondampalli village on 8 Oct 2020 and Gonipeta village on 14 Oct 2020. Mineral mixture, Ca supplement, B-complex injections, spray for ectoparasites and deworming medicines were provided through the project for around 1400 cattle and nearly 3600 sheep/goat in 330 households.

For details of farmers who participated and the inputs given, please see Annexure 6.6a, b, c.

Fodder promotion

Livestock related activities generally involve women and any improvement in productivity leads to better household nutrition and incomes for women.

During rainy 2020 season, a multicut variety of fodder sorghum (COFS 29) was promoted among 27 farmers (Table 2 and Figure 13). Each farmer was provided with 1 kg seed and a 50 kg bag of fertilizer. Farmer wise details were already shared in half-yearly (Jan-Sept 2020) report.

Similarly, during the post-rainy 2020-21 season, sorghum (CSH 24 MF) fodder demonstrations were promoted with 60 farmers (Figure 14). Each farmer was provided with 3 kg of improved seed along with fertilizers. Data will be collected and reported in subsequent report.

Please see Annexure 6.7 for farmer-wise details of fodder demonstrations.

Strengthening livestock-based activities

Livestock activity is in the domain of women and any gain from this activity in general leads to their incomes. Therefore, interested women (75 under five SHGs across four villages) were identified to be supported in starting livestock-based (ram-lamb, poultry) activities. Each woman will be supported monetarily through project and guided to successfully start livestock-based livelihood.

Promoting horticulture

During 2020-21, mango and guava saplings were distributed to interested farmers across four villages. A total of 6,165 saplings were distributed to 621 households (Table 3 and Figure 15).

Please see Annexure 6.8 for farmer-wise details of fruit saplings planted.

Total	6165	621

3.4. Mechanization and infrastructure

There is a great scope to improve on-farm mechanization and infrastructure to reduce drudgery and ensure timely operations. Therefore, one Custom Hiring Center (CHC) is being established in Kondampalli village that will be managed by Gram Panchayat (GP) with support of an NGO, watershed committee (WC) and farmers. The process of procurement of machinery (like power weeders, battery cum manual sprayers, high pressure power sprayers, tractor cultivators, seed drills, rotovator and others) is on following which the CHC in Kondampalli village in Anantapur watershed will soon be operational.

3.5. Capacity building

A field-based ICRISAT Scientific Officer (MTech), four field staff and a coordinator supported by the NGO partner are regularly visiting farmers to help build their skills in these interventions.

As a part of capacity building (CB) of farmers, formal and informal orientation/trainings were done. In addition to informal daily visits for promotion of technologies through capacity building, around 18 formal trainings programs were organized in the watershed to create awareness and skills to facilitate technology adoption. To help farmers understand the merits of the promoted technologies, nine field-days were conducted to demonstrate the adoptable technologies in Anantapur watershed (Table 4; Figure 16).

4. Progress in Wanaparthy watershed

4.1. Rainwater conservation

Farm-ponds

Water scarcity in Telangana, and in drylands as such, risks dryland agriculture. Huge variations in rainfall and its distribution variations leading to frequent droughts affects agricultural prospects. This is expected to further deteriorate with climate change. Finding ways to increase water availability and facilitating the smallholder farmer's quick access to water is an important step to support dryland agriculture. Construction of low cost small farm ponds has proved a promising option for rainwater storage. Besides providing irrigation in need, it is a drought-proofing strategy that helps plug yield losses of 30-60% and gives farmers enough security to take risks in diversifying to high value agriculture (<http://dx.doi.org/10.1079/9781786394514.0197> ; <https://www.tandfonline.com/doi/abs/10.1080/03650340.2018.1560426?journalCode=gags20>).

Having seen benefits in the construction of 137 farm-ponds during 2014-2017 in the earlier phase of the project in Wanaparthy, more farmers are volunteering to have ponds constructed on their farms. Accordingly, 148 new farm-ponds were dug across four villages in Anantapur watershed till March 2021, (Figure 17). All the farm ponds are being cement-lined and fenced with a barbed wire for the safety.

Please see Annexure 7.1 for farmer-wise details corresponding to farm ponds.

Check dams

Three sites for construction have been identified and finalized in consultation with WC and farmers, one each in Rajapeta, Peddagudem and Kadukuntla villages. The work will be completed by April 21.

4.2. Productivity enhancement demonstrations

4.2.1. Rainy 2020 season demonstrations

Soil test-based fertilizer management demonstrations

Based on soil analysis, micro and secondary nutrients that were deficient in the soils were promoted among farmers in demonstrations. Each farmer was provided with zinc, sulphur and boron. Recording of yield data in rainy 2020 demonstrations in Wanaparthy showed around 10% benefit after application of deficient micro/secondary nutrients for paddy and groundnut crops (Figure 18, 19).

Please see Annexure 7.2 for farmer-wise micro/secondary nutrient demonstrations and yield data details.

Improved crop varieties demonstrations

Demonstrations of improved varieties of groundnut (ICGV 91114, K6) and pigeonpea (ICPL 85063, ICPH 2740) were set up. Recorded data shows that improved groundnut varieties resulted in a yield benefit of 21% with K-6 and 22% with ICGV-91114 (Figure 20, 21). Similarly, the benefit over the local varieties in case of pigeonpea improved varieties was around 19% with ICPL 85063 and around 13% with ICPH 2740 (Figure 22, 23).

For farmer-wise groundnut varieties demonstrations and yield data details, please see Annexure 7.3a. Farmer-wise pigeonpea varieties demonstrations and yield data details can be found in Annexure 7.3b.

4.2.2. Post-rainy 2020-21 season demonstrations

Soil test-based fertilizer management demonstrations

In line with rainy 2020 demonstrations, soil test-based nutrient management demonstrations were conducted with 286 farmers using paddy and groundnut (Figure 24). Data will be collected for improved vs farmers practice and reported in subsequent report.

Integrated Pest Management (IPM) demonstrations

During post-rainy 2020-21 season, 158 demonstrations were conducted on IPM (Table 5; Figure 26). Protective sprays of neem oil were given. Data will be collected for improved vs farmers practice and reported in subsequent report.

Please see Annexure 7.4 for farmer-wise IPM demonstrations details during post-rainy 2020-21 season.

4.3. Income generating interventions & mainstreaming women farmers

Nutri-gardens by women farmers

Nutri-gardens were promoted among women farmers to get them more involved (Figure 27). Each person was given around 150-400 g of vegetable seeds (okra, beans, and spinach), a small sprayer for pesticides, 2 kg NPK fertilizer and 100 g micro/secondary nutrient (Zn, B, S) mixture. During rainy 2020 season, each household produced 13 kg vegetables on average for household consumption.

Please see Annexure 7.5a for women farmer-wise nutri-gardens during rainy 2020 season and yield data details.

During post-rainy 2020-21 season, 384 women were supported to establish nutri-gardens by providing 100-200 g vegetable seeds of okra, spinach, beans and macro/micro nutrient fertilizers (Figure 28).

Please see Annexure 7.5b for farmer-wise nutri-gardens during post-rainy 2020-21 season and yield data details.

Animal health camp

One animal health camp was conducted in Rajapeta village in Wanaparthy on 12 Nov 2020 (Figure 29). This camp was organized along with line departments and inputs were supported through the project. Around 700 livestock from 61 households were treated and provided supplements.

For detail of farmers participated and inputs given, please see Annexure 7.6.

Fodder promotion

During the post-rainy 2020-21 season, sorghum (CSH 24 MF) fodder demonstrations were promoted with 60 farmers. Each farmer was provided with 3 kg improved seed along with fertilizers. Napier grass was also promoted among participating farmers. Data will be collected and reported in subsequent report (Figure 30).

Please see Annexure 7.7 for farmer-wise details of fodder demonstrations.

Strengthening livestock-based activities

Livestock activity is mainly involves women and any gains such activities increases the women's incomes. Therefore, 50 women from across four villages who expressed interest in being supported in starting livestock-based (ram-lamb, poultry) activities. Another 20-25 women who expressed are being identified. All the women will be supported monetarily through project and guided to successfully start livestock-based livelihood.

Promoting horticulture

To enhance system productivity, fruit plantations were promoted on marginal lands. During the rainy season, mango, guava, acid lime and curry leaf saplings were distributed to interested farmers across four villages. A total of 6,973 saplings were distributed to 602 households (Table 6 and Figure 31).

Farmer-wise details were reported in the half-yearly report (Jan-Sept 2020).

Mechanization and infrastructure

There is a great scope to improve on-farm mechanization and infrastructure to reduce drudgery and ensuring timely operations. Therefore, one Custom Hiring Center (CHC) is being established in Rajapeta village that will be managed by Gram Panchayat (GP) with support of an NGO, watershed committee (WC) and farmers. The process of procurement of machineries (like Power weeders, battery cum manual sprayers, high pressure power sprayers, tractor cultivators, seed drills, rotovator, others) by is underway and will soon enable the CHC to become operational.

Capacity building

A field-based ICRISAT Scientific Officer, four field staff and a coordinator supported by the NGO partner have been regularly visiting farmers to help them build their skills in interventions.

To build capacity of farmers, formal and informal orientation/trainings were done. In addition to informal day-to-day visits for promotion of technologies by building capacity, around 36 formal trainings programs were organized in the watershed to create awareness and to build skills for adoption of technologies. To demonstrate the effectiveness of the promoted technologies to farmers, nine field-days were conducted to improve adoption in Anantapur watershed (Table 7).

Impact story

Harvesting rains to grow fruit, vegetables and improved crops at watershed learning sites in India

This cropping season, observing all safety measures amidst the COVID pandemic (see box), more than a 1,000 farmers will be participating in demonstrations on growing improved groundnut, pigeonpea and vegetables with balanced application of fertilizers and planting orchards at two learning sites of a successful watershed initiative in southern India. Simultaneously, more than 300 farmers will be participating in constructing new farm ponds. Increased water availability due to watershed interventions has enabled farmers in two states to grow new and better crops and increase production on drought-stricken lands that barely supported subsistence.

Entering into Phase II this year, this Corporate Social Responsibility project of the Rural Electrification Corporation Limited (RECL), India, seeks to build on work that began in 2014 in Wanaparthy district in Telangana state and Anantapur district in Andhra Pradesh state.

The watersheds are now developing into exemplar sites to provide a proof of concept of scaling-out key on-farm solutions for climate-resilience and strengthening of livelihoods and mainstreaming of women farmers. These projects will show the way forward not only for uplifting drylands but also for leveraging social responsibility in uplifting the underprivileged, while contributing to food security and ecosystem services.

During Phase II, the initiative will focus on the following:

- Intensify on-farm water solutions for drought-proofing

- Extensive on-farm mechanization
- Infrastructure for improving operational & economic efficiency
- Mainstreaming of women farmers through select activities
- Building on rejuvenated soil and water resources for on-farm intensification and diversification

Impact of Phase I of the watershed projects

- Harvesting rainwater:
Net water storage capacity of more than 50000 m³ created at each site.

Major water conservation measures implemented at Anantapur site includes 58 farm ponds, 15 check dams, 256 rock-filled-dams/loose-boulder-structures, 43

International Women’s Day (8 March) special feature

Women strengthen household nutrition and turn entrepreneurs with nutri-gardens

As one of the key activities undertaken by our watershed projects to improve household nutrition in rural Telangana and Andhra Pradesh, India, encouraging women farmers to start small vegetable gardens in their backyards has been very successful. These ‘nutri-gardens’ also help augment household incomes, especially during times of job losses and restricted mobility due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

The following are some heartening stories told by enterprising women beneficiaries of two joint projects of ICRISAT with the Rural Electrification Corporation Limited (RECL), India, and AB Inbev respectively.

“With the support of this project, I got vegetable seed, sprayer and other inputs, with which I established a small nutri-garden near my home. With no extra effort, and using my kitchen waste water, I have obtained good yield of bitter gourd, ridge gourd and leafy vegetables like ‘palak’ (spinach) and ‘gongura’. For several weeks now, we have been having fresh, home-grown vegetables and will continue this practice rather than going for long distances to purchase from shops.”

Ms K Vanaja, Kondampalli village, Anantapur, Andhra Pradesh. (All Anantapur photos by Samatha and ICRISAT)

“My family is very happy with this attempt of mine to set up a vegetable garden in our home backyard. With advice from the project staff, I used vermicompost before sowing the seeds. I could clearly see the improvement in yield and quality of vegetables, especially bitter gourd, brinjal and ridge gourd. I have sold nearly 30 kg ridge gourd and 14 kg bitter gourd in the village so far and got good profits. Apart from that, my neighbors also got inspired by me and now they have also started growing vegetables in their home premises.”

Water management and allied activities deliver multiple benefits for farmers in rural South India

Continued efforts, via public-private partnerships, to build resilience in dryland farmers are yielding multi-faceted benefits – about 100 farm ponds with 20,000 cubic meter capacity for better access to water, 21-44% higher crop yields, better nutrition and incomes through fruit and vegetable gardens, and greater awareness of technologies – for local farmers, in Andhra Pradesh and Telangana states in India.

As reported in an earlier article, the joint project by the Rural Electrification Corporation Limited (RECL), India, in partnership with ICRISAT Development Center, is building on work that began in 2014 in Wanaparthy district, Telangana, and Anantapur district, Andhra Pradesh. In the second phase (2020-2021) of this project, the primary focus is on

- enhancing access to water
- enhancing productivity through high-yielding climate-smart crop varieties and need-based fertilizers
- mechanization and infrastructure for operational/ economic efficiency
- on-farm diversification
- mainstreaming of women farmers through nutri-gardens
- strengthening livestock-based activities.

Increased availability and access to water
Realizing that water scarcity is a significant challenge for farmers in this region, farm-level water storage solutions were developed on high priority. (<http://icrisat.org/news>).

icrisat.org/outcome-stories/small-ponds-make-big-progress-among-farmers-in-dry; <http://www.icrisat.org/low-cost-drought-proofing-strategies-help-farmers-in-southern-india/>).

Around 100 farm ponds have been constructed at both sites from 2020 till mid-Feb 2021, enabling quick access to water for 100 smallholders, and adding 20,000 cubic meter water storage capacity. Farm ponds are low-cost structures that help farmers quickly access water during the dry season and support system-level productivity. (Watch a video on this by clicking link: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=5z9we-Fg78I>)

Mr Ramachandra Reddy’s newly constructed farm pond in Kondampalle village is now ready for use, and he is already irrigating his fields using water from there. The nearby check dam constructed in 2017 through the project has ensured that groundwater is available at a depth of 3 m during the months of December and January. “Before the project, even drinking water was not available, and groundwater was available only at depths of about 180 m during the dry seasons,” he said. “The next rainy season will help us to fill our farm ponds and will ensure water availability in the case of a dry spell.” Similarly, in nearby Gonipeta village, a check dam constructed in 2017 has ensured that about 16 ha of land have water available throughout the year.

An assessment of groundwater during December 2020 showed a higher water level between 1.5-20 m in Wanaparthy and 1-14 m in Anantapur, mainly due to

Watershed interventions provide groundwater access all year through

Water conservation structures in Anantapuramu: A check dam (L) constructed in Kondampalle village, Anantapuramu, during 2017 has led to increase in groundwater levels that benefits a newly constructed pond (R) in Ramachandra Reddy's farm, providing sufficient water to irrigate a second crop. The check dam constructed in 2017 through the project has ensured that groundwater is available at a depth of 3 meters. Before the project, even water for drinking purposes was not available, and groundwater was available only at about 183 meters during the dry seasons," he says.

In the semi-arid tropics water is a precious resource that often does not trickle down to small farms. Farmers who can afford borewells, save their crops during dry spells in the cropping season whilst others watch crops and investment dry up. Now, a CSR project led by ICRISAT has shown how watershed interventions contributed to a 2-meter rise in groundwater in Anantapuramu district, Andhra Pradesh state, South India. The RECL-ICRISAT watershed sites provide proof of concept for holistic solutions that improve system productivity and livelihoods. In project villages compared to non-watershed villages, even a 10-foot deep farm pond yielded quick access to irrigation water. Eighty new ponds dug during 2020-21 created extra storage capacity of around 16,000 m³ bringing the total to 66,000 m³, benefiting 1500 smallholders in the region by providing water all year through.

Remote sensing/GIS and hydrology studies coupled with ground truthing during the first phase of the project (2014-17), were followed by a series of check dams and other water conservation structures built in the region. This led to a steady increase in groundwater levels by up to 2 meters compared to non-watershed villages, creating a net water storage capacity of more than 50,000 m³. Because of the storage capacity generated, around 125,000 m³ rainwater gets recharged into the groundwater table, increasing water availability for irrigation and other uses.

Major water conservation measures implemented at Anantapuramu site include 58 farm ponds, 15 check dams, 256 rock-filled-dams/loose-boulder-structures, 43 open-well/borewell recharging pits and 7 sunken/multi-percolation pits.

Water structure interventions and good rains during the year, in some cases, contributed to an even higher increase in groundwater levels reaching up to 14 meters as in Kondampalle, one of the project villages. Today about 14 beneficiaries with 20 ha have benefited, and about eight bore well recharge pits have ensured that water is readily available throughout the year. As many as 36 farm ponds were constructed in the village during 2020-2021, and more farmers are coming forward to build ponds.

In nearby Gonipeta village, twenty farmers and their families have benefited from the interventions, and more are keen on constructing ponds in their fields. The check dam built in the project's first phase ensured that about 16 ha of land have water available all year. Groundwater in some cases is now available at a depth

We believe all people have a right to nutritious food and a better livelihood.

ICRISAT works in agricultural research for development across the drylands of Africa and Asia, making farming profitable for smallholder farmers while reducing malnutrition and environmental degradation.

We work across the entire value chain from developing new varieties to agri-business and linking farmers to markets.
