1. Executive summary

During the period April–September 2021, significant progress was made at Anantapur (Andhra Pradesh) and Wanaparthy (Telangana) watershed sites in implementing activities involving rainwater conservation, enhancing productivity, income generation, mainstreaming women, developing mechanization and infrastructure, capacity building and communication.

Anantapur watershed site

During the reporting period, cement lining and barbed wire fencing was completed in 142 farm ponds dug in the Anantapur site till March 2021. Also, 58 more farm ponds were constructed, bringing it to a total of 200 dug during the revised phase, i.e. 2020 and 2021. In addition, 4 check dams and 7 rock fill dams were constructed during the reporting period.

Under productivity enhancing demonstrations in Anantapur during post-rainy season 2020-21, analysis of data showed significant yield benefits through micro/secondary nutrient application – 15% in groundnut, 10% in paddy, 15% in finger millet, 11% in maize, 20% in onion and 23% in tomato. Farmers harvested 209 kg/acre of improved chickpea variety JG 14 and 236 kg/acre of JAKI 9218 in traditional fallows. The adoption of IPM practices led to increased yields in groundnut (17%), paddy (13%) and maize (12%).

During rainy season 2021, 362 soil test-based micro/secondary nutrients demonstrations were conducted on groundnut, paddy, finger millet, sunflower and vegetables like brinjal, chillies and tomato. Similarly, 270 demonstrations were conducted on improved varieties of pigeonpea, groundnut, pearl millet, finger millet and sorghum. Forty-seven IPM demonstrations were done on groundnut, paddy, maize and vegetables like chillies, onion and tomato.

During summer 2021, 200 women were supported in setting up nutri-gardens, which on an average yielded 41 kg per garden. In the rainy season 2021, 139 women were supported in this venture. Seventy-five women across four villages were provided ram lambs to start livestock-based activities. Sixty women were also provided sewing machines as a means of strengthening their livelihoods. To ensure healthy livestock, an animal health camp was conducted in Kondampalli village for ~415 cattle and ~2200 sheep/goat of 88 households. To address fodder scarcity, sorghum (CSH24MF) fodder demonstrations were promoted with 60 farmers during the post-rainy season 2020-21, from which farmers could harvest an average of 10,320 kg/acre of biomass. Similarly, during the 2021 rainy season, 127 farmers were supported in growing fodder. To enhance system productivity, mango and jamun saplings (2670) were distributed to 259 households till September 2021.

One Custom Hiring Center (CHC) was established in Kondampalli village and is being managed through the Gram Panchayat (GP) with the support of ICRISAT, an NGO, the watershed committee (WC) and farmers. Work is on to establish 2 or 3 more CHCs in Anantapur watershed.

Wanaparthy watershed site

During the reporting period, cement lining and barbed wire fencing was completed in 148 farm ponds dug in Wanaparthy watershed site till March 2021. Fifty-two more farm ponds were constructed in the reporting period, bringing it to a total of 200 during the revised phase, i.e. 2020 and 2021. In addition, 4 check dams are constructed and 7 sites were identified in Rajapeta and Peddagudem villages to construct rock fill dams.

Under productivity enhancing activities undertaken during the 2020-21 post-rainy season, analysis of data showed significant yield benefits accruing from micro/secondary nutrients' demonstrations – 13% in groundnut and 7% in paddy. Improved chickpea varieties JG 14 and JAKI 9218 yielded 112 kg/acre and 121 kg/acre, respectively in traditional fallows. The adoption of IPM practices led to increased crop yields in groundnut by 13%, paddy by 4% and black gram by 7%.

During the 2021 rainy season, 459 demonstrations were conducted on soil test-based micro/secondary nutrient application in major crops like groundnut, paddy, finger millet, pigeonpea and mango. Similarly, 256 demonstrations were conducted on improved varieties of pigeonpea, groundnut, pearl millet, finger millet and sorghum and 55 IPM demonstrations on groundnut, paddy, vegetables (tomato, brinjal) and mango.

Women were involved in household nutrition enhancing activities. A total of 332 women were supported in setting up nutri-gardens during the 2020-21 post-rainy season. Each nutri-garden harvested an average of 10 kg. Similarly, during the 2021 rainy season, 369 women set up nutri-gardens; they were provided 50-100 g seeds of okra and brinjal. Seventy-five women across four villages were provided ram lambs to start livestock-based activities. Twenty-seven women were provided with sewing machines in strengthening their livelihoods. An animal health camp was conducted in Peddagudem village on 7 September 2021 for around ~200 cattle and 650 sheep/goat belonging to 50 households. To address fodder scarcity, sorghum (CSH 24 MF) fodder demonstrations were conducted with 119 farmers during the post-rainy season 2020-21, with farmers harvesting an average of 7600 kg/acre biomass. Similarly, during the rainy season 2021, 94 farmers were supported in growing fodder for cattle. To enhance system productivity, 2109 fruit saplings (mango, guava, acid lime) were distributed to 294 households across four villages.

A CHC was set up in Rajapeta village and is being managed by the Gram Panchayat with the support of ICRISAT, an NGO, the watershed committee and farmers. Work is on to set up 3 more CHCs in Wanaparthy watershed.

2. Background

Under its Corporate Social Responsibility, RECL supported ICRISAT in developing scalable sites of learning to improve livelihoods and build resilience through integrated watershed management in Anantapur district of Andhra Pradesh and Wanaparthy (erstwhile Mahabubnagar) district of Telangana (Figure 1).

The RECL-ICRISAT watershed project implemented in Anantapur covers four villages (Kondampalli, Gonipeta, Settipalli and Cherlopalli in Penukonda mandal) with a population of 8,700 and covering 6,810 ha, of which 3,150 ha is under cultivation by 1,480 households. The important crops cultivated are groundnut, maize, paddy, finger millet and sunflower.

In Wanaparthy district, the project was implemented in four villages (Rajapeta, Kadukuntla, Peddagudem and Mentapally) with a population of 11,726 and covering 5,400 ha, including 3,970 ha under cultivation by 2,285 households. The main crops grown are paddy, pigeonpea and groundnut.

A multi-disciplinary team of scientists/managers is implementing the project with a field-based Scientific Officer at each site. For effectively reaching out to the community, ICRISAT partnered with local NGO SAMATHA Society for Rural Education and Development in the Anantapur site and with BAIF Institute for Sustainable Livelihoods and Development (BISLD) in the Wanaparthy site.
